  - a) CFD/Future/Derivatives/Forex Scalping; it is a trading style used by traders to buy or sell a instrument and then hold it for a short period of time in an attempt to make a profit. A scalper looks to make a large number of trades, taking advantage of the small price movements which are common throughout the day. While scalping attempts to capture small gains, such as 0 to 20 pips per trade, the profit on these trades can be magnified by increasing the position size;
  - b) Scalping involves buying and selling currencies, typically with a brief holding time and with multiple trades taken each day.
  - c) Scalpers keep risk small in an attempt to capture small price movements for a profit. The small price movements can become significant amounts of money with leverage and large position sizes.
  - d) Scalpers typically use promotional forex accounts, as using a normal account will put them at a disadvantage.
  - e) Leverage, spreads, fees, and slippage are all risks that the scalper needs to control, manage, and account for as much as possible.
  - f) Hedging, High Frequency Trading, Expert Advisors, Algorithmic Trading, All Forms Of Trading Arbitrage, Latency Arbitrage, News/Event Arbitrage, Swap/Rollover Arbitrage.
  - g) Trading volume spikes around/during volatile/thin markets or for completion of volume requirements of the promotion, with a distinct change from previous trading patterns witnessed in the account.

- h) Any Systematic Trading Strategy that derives its sole advantage from the special terms of the bonus such as trading with intent to scalp trade or trade with high leverage in/around/during thin/illiquid markets/news releases/partial market holidays/economic and political events(such as election results), wash sales, misusing swap-free trading, and any other strategy that takes advantage of short term anomalies in the market using the bonus funds/leverage/conditions to generate/magnify profits.
  - i) All Corporate Actions including but not limited to stock splits/ reverse splits/ dividends/ index adjustments and any other structural event that causes a mathematical adjustment to the price of the traded asset.
  - j) Deep draw-downs in accounts with a large number of positions continuing to be added into the account when accounts are near threshold levels where rebates stop, with no attempt being made to close the loss making positions, no matter how large the loss. New positions being added in a martingale like fashion and such positions being opened/closed for continued rebate generation with actual realizable account values falling but balances rising.
  - k) Accounts near expiry of bonus opening unlimited positions at all levels, followed by closing of positions that increase the balance, while the account's realizable value continues to decline/remains stagnant.
  - l) Simultaneous opening of buying and selling positions in the same markets at the same time, using a combination of accounts which are all being managed by the same/related manager.
34. If FXTRADING.com has reason to believe that a user is in violation of the terms of the promotion and/or abusing/misusing the terms of the bonus, FXTRADING.com shall inform the user in writing of the said violation and may exercise remedies including but not limited to:
- a) Cancellation of the bonus and any profits made in the account while the bonus funds were in the account, with immediate effect.
  - b) Removal of the bonus funds, profits made using the bonus funds and a closure of the account, followed by a return of the user's funds to the account from which the user's own funds on deposit were originally received.
  - c) In case the account using the promotion has a current balance that is below the original starting balance, any losses made in the account shall be deducted from the user's deposited funds and the remaining funds shall be remitted back to the client, via the same method as the mode of deposit.

and without obtaining the Client's consent to remove the Bonus and/or profits derived from the promotion(s), from the Client's trading account(s) with immediate effect. 42. Insufficient trading activity on the account can also serve as a valid reason for the reconsideration of the result. For example, placement of a single large trade or several trades with a lower volume, that are placed approximately at the same time with similar prices, which is basically a split of a large trade into smaller trades.
